PEAL - Plain English Allergen Labelling

The updated Plain English Allergen Labelling regulations for food offered for sale in Australia came into effect 25th February 2021, with a 3-year transition period. In summary, the regulations require all Allergens to be listed in their *required names as:

- Bold text within a statement of ingredients (when a product is required to bear a label), and;
- In a separate bold type "Contains" statement in the same field of view as the statement of ingredients; and directly next to the statement of ingredients; and be distinctly separated from the statement of ingredients.

All Stores who pack and label food products in-store for sale in Self-Serve Displays or Assisted Serviced Displays should review their labels/product information, update this information in their BOS to the new legislative requirements and ensure bold text type is able to be printed from Scales and Labelling Machines by no later than 25th February 2024.

For Further Information,

It is imperative that retailers undertake their own research to ensure that they are complying with the legislation. Below are some links to help you:
